Since 1996, the academic journal Studia Europaea, issued by the Faculty of European Studies at the Babeş-Bolyai University in Cluj,-Napoca Romania, has been representing an open arena for promoting research endeavours. The journal is refereed by international specialists and officially acknowledged by the Romanian National University Research Council (CNCSIS).

Since February 2008, Studia Europaea has been included in ProQuest CSA Worldwide Political Science Abstracts, one of the most prestigious worldwide databases for political science, which includes academic journals such as International Affairs, Survival or Political Analysis (www.csa.com).

The publication's area of concern is in falling in line with the multidisciplinary profile of the Faculty of European Studies. Consequently, the studies reflect several areas of scientific research (political science, international relations, law, economics, anthropology, information and communication technology), focusing however, on present-day concerns of European integration. Depending on the subjects addressed by the contributors, the articles are generally organized by extended domains (e.g. International Relations and European Politics, Models and Policies in European Economy).
