I am a PhD-Candidate at the University of Vienna writing my dissertation entitled "Journeymen´s migration from/to Wroclaw and Cracow from the 16th to the 19th century" under the supervision of Prof. Ehmer and Prof. Ther as an interdisciplinary project between the department of Economic and Social History and the department of East European History.

By using the idea of "circulation of movement" and following the migration concept by Lesger et. al. (2002), it will be possible to study the development and changes of trapping routes throughout the centuries.

Furthermore the migrational process can be analysed as a spatial experience.

This micro-level study allows me to observe the individuality in a highly organised structure such as guilds and point out the area of conflict between these two social groups.
